

THE UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING
SUMMER SESSION

Presents

THE SEVENTH INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

"The Struggle for Men's Minds"

July 23—August 24, 1951

"The conflict between Communism and democracy is a battle for the minds, souls, and allegiances of men."

—Gen. Lucius D. Clay

A public forum is held each Wednesday night during the Institute, with visiting authorities in the field of international affairs discussing pertinent and timely questions. Above are Brian Heddy, British Consul; Dr. Felix Gross, Professor of Regional Studies in the Graduate School of New York University; Dr. Paul Alpert, European economist with the United Nations Secretariat, and Dr. Gale W. McGee, Chairman of the Institute.

Think on These Things

"I am convinced the Russians fear our ideas more than our armies."—Winston Churchill.

"Military power alone will never stop the Communist advance in Asia . . . Money is not so much needed as ideas."—Justice William O. Douglas.

"The Big Truth is the best answer to the Big Lie of Communism."—Eleanor Roosevelt.

"Arms and economic aid are indispensable but by themselves are not enough. Only in the field of ideas and spiritual values can victory be lasting . . . In a democratic society such as ours private citizens must take hold in public situations and supplement the work of the government."—Joseph C. Grew.

"The Soul of the world is sick, and the peoples of the world are looking to the United States for leadership and hope."—Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

"We have yet to convince Europe and Asia that we champion a better life for them."—Harold Callender.

"It is for us who have breathed freedom from the day of our birth as a nation to spread to the world our steadfast determination and our confidence that in the end freedom will prevail."—Frederick Osborn.

"I believe that we face today a struggle of ideas and not of arms and that if we can win that struggle we need not have the tragedy of another war."—Senator Robert E. Taft.

"One effective way of combating communistic projects in Korea and of advancing America's peaceful purposes is to insure an understanding abroad of American strength, aspirations and determination. Because of the vital importance of the European area it is especially necessary that the facts of American integrity and decency and of communistic double-dealing and ruthlessness be constantly publicized on both sides of the curtain."—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

THE UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING SUMMER SESSION

Presents the Seventh INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

"The Struggle for Men's Minds"
Second Term, July 23—August 24, 1951

GALE W. MCGEE, Chairman

FELIKS GROSS, Director

"The Coolest Summer School in America"

"The Struggle for Men's Minds," will be the theme of the seventh annual Institute of International Affairs to be held during the second term of the summer session, July 23 to August 24. The consideration of this topic, perhaps the most vital question of our day, promises to result in an even more stimulating session than was held last year when each of the weekly open forum meetings was attended by more than 500 persons, among them scholars, experts and diplomats from over the world, as well as students from all sections of this country.

The general problem of the struggle between Communism and the democratic way of life will be discussed under the headings, "The American Mind," "The Satellite Mind," "The Oriental Mind" (India and the Middle East), "The Asiatic Mind," (China, Korea, Japan, Southeastern Asia), and "The Western European Mind."

Recognizing that peace is everybody's business and that an informed citizenry is essential for the effective operation of democracy in world affairs, the Institute aims: (1) to stimulate better teaching of international Affairs; (2) to encourage research in the field of international relations; (3) to raise the level of understanding of international questions by the individual citizen.

The core of the Institute is the Central Course, a lecture series with meetings five times per week. The first three days of each week are devoted to lectures by visiting experts, either foreign or American, and every effort is made to see that all major conflicting views are well represented. A question and answer period is held each Thursday, during which the lecturer of the week will answer students' questions and consider their comments. Each Friday is devoted to a summary of the week's lectures and discussions. One evening each week a "town meeting" affair is held. These lively gatherings, eagerly anticipated by University faculty, students and townspeople, include audience participation with discussion by the visiting specialists. They are often broadcast.

In addition to the Central Course, a curriculum in international affairs makes it possible for the student to earn an A.B. or an M.A. degree in international affairs. Included are courses in international law, finance, trade, organization, and government; United States, European, and Far Eastern history and diplomacy; geography, sociology; philosophy and the modern languages. In all, nearly 100 hours are available on the graduate level and considerably more on the undergraduate.

For details and further information, write Dr. Gale W. McGee, Chairman, Institute of International Affairs, or the Director of the Summer Session, Dean O. C. Schwiering, University of Wyoming, Laramie.

1951 INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING

"THE STRUGGLE FOR MEN'S MINDS"

SECOND TERM, JULY 23—AUGUST 24

CENTRAL COURSE, 2:10 P.M., M-F, 3 hrs. credit

FIRST WEEK, July 23-27: "The American Mind"

Norman Thomas, famous Socialist candidate for President of the United States and internationally known authority in the field of public affairs.

SECOND WEEK, July 30-August 3: "The Satellite Mind"

Grigore Gafencu, former Rumanian Foreign Minister and Rumanian Minister to Moscow, and a spokesman for the Voice of America to be named later.

THIRD WEEK, August 6-10: "The Western European Mind"

George S. Langrod, lecturer on International Administration at the University of Paris, and the Institute staff will present summary and evaluation of the entire session.

FOURTH WEEK, August 13-17: "The Oriental Mind"

Taraknath Das, native of Calcutta, India, now Professor of Public Affairs in New York University and Lecturer on Oriental History and World Politics at Columbia, will discuss India and the Middle East.

FIFTH WEEK, August 20-24: "The Asiatic Mind"

Harold Quigley, Professor of Political Science at the University of Minnesota and specialist in the history and politics of Far Eastern countries, will discuss China, Korea, Japan and Southeastern Asia.

Each Wednesday evening a panel of experts will discuss pertinent problems of American Foreign Policy in a forum open to the public without charge.

COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

General survey courses on the 300 level which apply toward an undergraduate major in international affairs are not listed below. The Master of Arts degree is offered under either Plan A or Plan B. Undergraduates wishing to major in international affairs or graduate students desiring a Master's degree in the field should communicate with Professor Gale W. McGee, Chairman of the Institute of International Affairs.

FIRST TERM, JUNE 18—JULY 20

Although the Institute of International Affairs is held during the second term of the summer session, several courses of interest to majors and graduate students in the field are available during the first term. These include:

Economics 618. Seminar in the Economics of Defense and War. Three hours credit. M-F 10. Mr. Rosen.

English 643c. World Literature. Three hours credit. M-F 2. Mr. Smith.

History 614b. Foundations of Western Culture. Three hours credit. M-F 2. Mr. Larson.

History 616b. Europe from the French Revolution to the Present. Three hours credit. M-F 1. Mr. Nussbaum.

History 646b. History of Foreign Relations of the United States. Three hours credit. M-F 9. Mr. McGee.
History 827a. Conference Course in Modern European History. (B). Hours to be arranged. Credit to be arranged. Mr. Larson and Mr. Nussbaum.
History 847a. Conference Course in American History (B). Credit to be arranged. Hours to be arranged. Mr. McGee.
Political Science 529b. Mexico and Central America. Three hours credit. M-F 8. Mr. Bloomfield.
Political Science 633. Conduct of American Foreign Relations. Three hours credit. M-F 10. Mr. Bloomfield.

SECOND TERM, JULY 23-AUGUST 24

International Affairs S660 (Central Course). "The Struggle for Men's Minds." Three hours credit. M-F 2:10. Mr. McGee and staff.
International Affairs S601. The Recent Political Development of China. Three hours credit. M-F 11. Mr. Quigley.
Economics 619. Seminar in Socialism, Communism and Capitalism. Three hours credit. M-F 3. Mr. Kauder.
Economics 685. International Trade. Three hours credit. M-F 11. Mr. Kauder.
History 616c. Europe from the French Revolution to the Present. (Eastern Europe, 1920-1951). Three hours credit. M-F 11. Mr. Gross.
History 827c. Conference Course in European History. Credit to be arranged. Hours to be arranged. Staff.
History 656c. Topics in American History (The Far East in Our Time). Three hours credit. M-F 9. Mr. Quigley.
Philosophy 645. Social and Political Philosophy. Three hours credit. M-F 1:10. Mr. Crissman.
Political Science 522. Government of the Soviet Union. Three hours credit. M-F 1:10. Mr. Busey.
Political Science 631. International Relations. Three hours credit. M-F. Mr. Busey.
Political Science 638. Contemporary International Problems. Three hours credit. M-F 10. Mr. Gross.
Political Science 687a. Seminar in International Law and International Relations. Three hours credit. M-F 9. Mr. Langrod.

CHAIRMAN OF THE INSTITUTE

McGEE, GALE W., Ph.D., University of Chicago; Associate Professor of American History, University of Wyoming; Contributor to historical publications and scholarly journals on problems of American Foreign Policy; Lecturer on United States Foreign Policy, University of Minnesota Concert and Lecture Bureau, 1949; Lecturer, conference on "The Far Eastern Crisis," Oregon State College, 1950. Brookings Institution Seminar on Problems of American Foreign Policy, 1949, 1950.

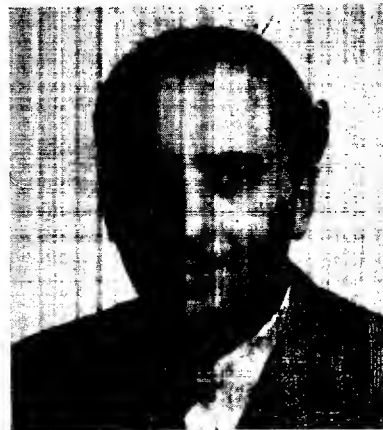

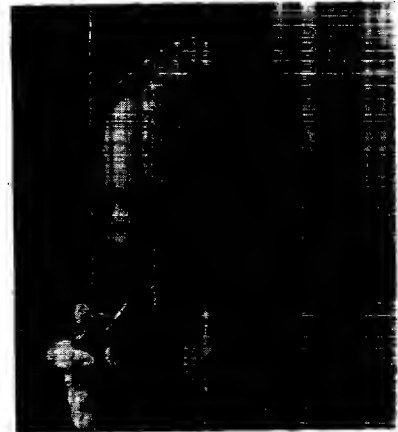

VISITING PROFESSORS AND LECTURERS

York, Queen's College; Visiting Lecturer.

GAFENCU, GRIGORE, LL.D., The Sorbonne (Paris); born in Bucharest, Rumania; studied law at Geneva, Switzerland; in World War I flew with French air squadrons stationed in Rumania and received Rumania's highest military order; after the war entered journalism and politics, owner and editor of two daily newspapers; entered Rumanian Parliament in 1928 and served until the breakdown of the democratic regime; Rumanian Foreign Minister, 1938-40; Minister to Moscow, 1940-41; took refuge in Geneva, Switzerland when Russia entered the war; author of Preliminaires de la Guerre a l'Est and Derniers Jours de l'Europe, both books since translated into English, German, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese and Turkish; writes for French and Swiss newspapers; lectured at London (Chatham House), Paris, Strassbourg, Florence, Zuerich, Geneva; member of the board and executive committee of the European Movement of which Winston Churchill is chairman; participated in congresses of the Movement at The Hague (1948) and Bruxelles (1949); represented Rumanian democratic parties at the Paris Conference of 1946; resident of New York City since 1947; Visiting Lecturer.

Georgetown University; Professor of Public Affairs, New York University and Lecturer on Oriental History and World Politics, Columbia University; a Hindu, born near Calcutta, India, an American citizen since 1914; educated in India (Calcutta University), studied in Japan; A.B. and A.M. and University Teachers' certificate from the University of Washington, Fellow in Political Science and Economics, University of Washington; post graduate studies at the University of California, and Berlin, Germany; and post doctorate studies at Columbia University; author of India in World Politics, British Expansion in Tibet, Foreign Policies in the Far East, etc.; contributor to important magazines and journals; travelled extensively in America, Europe and Asia; lectured extensively in America; taught in Catholic University of America, University of Maryland, College of the City of New GROSS, FELIKS, LL.D., University of Cracow (Poland); Professor of Regional Studies in the Graduate School of New York University; Associate Professor of Sociology and Social Anthropology at Brooklyn College; Visiting Professor of Foreign Politics, University of Virginia, spring, 1951; appointed Visiting Professor, College of Europe, Bruges, Belgium; author of Crossroads of Two Continents, The Polish Worker; editor of Twentieth Century Ideologies of Europe; Director of the Institute of International Affairs of the University of Wyoming and Visiting Professor of International Affairs.

LANGROD, GEORGE S., LL.D., University of Cracow (Poland); Lecturer on International Administration; Institute of Advanced International Studies of the University of Paris and at the Université européenne de la Sarre; Consultant in Social Science, UNESCO, Paris; Deputy Secretary General, International Academy of Political Science and Constitutional History, Paris; Visiting Professor in several European Universities; author of many treatises published in Polish, French, German and Italian, dealing with public law, political institutions, philosophy of law, and constitutionalism; author of Comparative Administrative Law, Comparative Science of Administrative Justice, and many other books; spent five years in a German prisoner of war camp where he helped organize regular University studies; co-founder of the International Political Science Association. Visiting Professor.

Approved For Release 2003/07/29 : CIA-RDP80R01731R001700020047-5

THOMAS, NORMAN, Litt.D., Princeton University; candidate for President of the United States five times and candidate for many offices on the Socialist ticket; social worker; pastor; graduate Princeton University and Union Theological Seminary; Executive Director of the League for Industrial Democracy; Chairman of the Post War World Council. author of America's Way Out, Human Exploitation, What Is Our Destiny? and many other books; columnist; frequent participant in radio forums. Visiting lecturer.

QUIGLEY, HAROLD, Ph.D., University of Wisconsin; Head, Department of Political Science, University of Minnesota; President, The Far Eastern Association; specialist in history and politics of Far Eastern countries; Visiting Professor, Tsing Hua University, Peking, China, 1921-23; lived in China and Japan at various times; former Rhodes Scholar and Guggenheim Fellow; contributor to many magazines and journals; has conducted forums at various foreign affairs institutes; author of, Japanese Government and Politics, The Far East, an International Survey, and Far Eastern War, 1937-41; associate editor, Far Eastern Quarterly; Visiting Professor of Far Eastern Affairs.

